Labour Day 2023

A worker is a creator and a great asset to every nation and institution. In order to acknowledge, appreciate and recognise the immense contribution the world receives from its workers, Mount Assisi celebrated Labour Day on 1 May 2023.

The non teaching staff always remains the stalwarts in the backdrop. It's an incredible association and selfless support from their end. We are honoured and grateful to our non teaching staff. This day was a wonderful chance to show our love and respect. A small program which came out beautifully was rendered to celebrate World Labour Day. The Monday morning was busy and decked up. The canvas at the backdrop on the stage had a meticulous display in bold letters 'Aapki mehnat hamari takat.' This clearly spoke how valued and respected our non teaching team is. The program started with the introduction briefing about the reasons and importance of this day.

Our bhaiyas and didis shyly took the stage to sing the prayer song. Their notes may be not in right chord but the ambience was filled with sacredness. Every one was asked to take their seats. Our assistant head prefects delivered an expressive speech highlighting how helpful and understanding they are. There was an entertaining and emotional dance performance to make the occasion lively. The school choir crooned in their melodious voice.

Mrs Leena Dutta happily shared with every one how our work and time becomes worthy due to our didis and bhaiyas. We were surprised and touched by our Pushpa didi who thanked us in return and expressed how good they felt. Our Head Master, Rev. Fr. Sivi Joseph TOR, presented gifts as a token of love and respect. He spoke how our non teaching staff is efficient and mastered in their work. He stated how well brushed and mindful they are in school. Everything works right because they support us. This celebration was over but we saw beaming smiles and gleaming eyes.

In the Ranitalab Campus, the supporting staff were honoured by the Principal, Rev. Kurian TOR in a cultural program put up by the students.

The student's representatives praised the valuable service rendered by Bhaiyas and Didis. The Principal honoured them by giving flowers and highlighting the importance of the supporting staff in running a school.

Our children in their own world will shape out how every work is respected and how we need everyone in our walk of life.
